

Information Request Checklist

What to provide so a buyer-ready overview can be tailored to your oil service company

Send the source information to us, not to the potential buyer. We will turn it into a concise, family-approved company overview and a discussion guide. The initial buyer-facing material will use only the level of detail your family authorizes.

Priority 1 — Company Story and Buyer-Facing Facts

Category	Done	What to provide
Company identity	☐	Legal name, DBA/brand name, primary location(s), service territory, website if any, and the primary family contact.
History and legacy	☐	Founding story, years in business, ownership background, key milestones, and what the family wants protected in a transition.
Services	☐	Plain-English descriptions of the core service lines, end markets, customer types, certifications, safety practices, and differentiators.
Approved proof points	☐	Verified evidence such as operating history, fleet capacity, safety measures, repeat business, dispatch reach, permits, or certifications.
Transition objectives	☐	The family's desired timing, post-closing role preferences, employee/customer priorities, and any non-negotiables you are comfortable sharing privately.

Priority 2 — Financial Information

Category	Done	What to provide privately
Profit and loss	☐	Three full fiscal years and the latest available year-to-date or trailing-twelve-month P&L. Monthly detail is helpful if available.
Cash flow	☐	Three full fiscal years and the latest period cash-flow statement, plus an explanation of unusual items or owner-specific expenses.
Balance sheet	☐	Most recent balance sheet, debt/lease summary, and any working-capital items that require context.
Financial bridge	☐	Brief notes on revenue changes, material customer or market events, capex, nonrecurring expenses, and any management adjustments you believe are relevant.
Sharing preference	☐	Indicate whether the buyer-facing page may use no financial figures, broad ranges only, or selected summary metrics after a mutual NDA.

Priority 3 — Operations, Assets, People, and Commercial Profile

Category	Done	What to provide privately
Equipment and facilities	☐	Asset or equipment list, make/model/year where available, ownership or lease status, operating condition, maintenance context, yards/facilities, and major permits.
Employees	☐	Employee roster or summary with name, role, location, tenure, certifications, reporting line, and approximate pay band if available. Do not include SSNs, home addresses, bank information, medical data, or personnel files.
Customers	☐	Customer list, revenue by customer for the relevant periods, contract/backlog summary, customer tenure, and relationship notes. We will anonymize it for any pre-NDA buyer material.
Vendors	☐	Key vendor list, recurring spend, critical supply/service relationships, equipment finance or lease counterparties, and relevant agreements.
Safety and compliance	☐	Insurance summary, material certifications, safety program overview, incident/claim context if relevant, and regulatory or permit information.

How the Information Will Be Used

Information level	What we will make from it	Who should see it
Family-provided source files	Working analysis, selected factual proof points, equipment and team summaries, and a management-ready discussion guide.	Family and their qualified advisers only.
Initial buyer-facing overview	One-page company profile with approved operating facts, high-level differentiation, and a controlled next-step statement.	Potential buyer only; no customer names, employee personal data, detailed financials, or pricing terms.
Post-NDA diligence package	Structured financial, customer, asset, vendor, and operating summaries matched to the buyer's legitimate questions.	Only parties covered by a mutually agreed confidentiality process and approved by the family.

Please Package the Files This Way

Preferred formats. Excel or CSV for financials, customer/vendor schedules, employee summaries, and equipment lists; PDF for contracts, permits, certifications, insurance summaries, and financial statements.

Helpful labels. Use clear file names such as "FY2024 P&L," "LTM Cash Flow," "Equipment List," "Employee Summary," and "Customer Revenue Detail." Keep one document per topic when practical.

Items to Keep Out of the First Buyer Meeting

Do not hand over raw financial statements, tax returns, customer contracts, detailed customer or vendor lists, employee compensation records, equipment values, insurance claim files, or any commitment on price, exclusivity, transaction structure, or timing. Those items can be organized thoughtfully once there is verified interest and an appropriate confidentiality process.

Three Decisions for the Family to Make Before Customization

☐	Financial disclosure	Choose: no figures in the first overview; broad ranges only; or selected summary metrics after a mutual NDA.
☐	Buyer fit	Identify the factors that matter most: employee continuity, customer stewardship, family role after closing, buyer reputation, resources, and speed of process.
☐	Process owner	Name one family point person to collect documents, approve facts, and coordinate follow-up with advisers.

What You Will Receive Back

Based on the provided information, the working deliverables can include a polished buyer-facing company overview, an internal family discussion guide, a confidential financial-and-operating snapshot for your advisers, and a staged information-request list for the buyer. Every buyer-facing statement should be verified and approved by the family before use.

This checklist is a meeting-preparation aid, not legal, tax, valuation, or transaction advice. Obtain advice from qualified legal, tax, and transaction professionals before signing a confidentiality agreement, letter of intent, exclusivity arrangement, or definitive agreement.
